CIA Chief Feels Hungarian Revolt Periled Red Rule

WASHINGTON — AP — Allen W. Dulles, central intelligence agency director, declares the Russians probably moved against the Hungarian rebels because they saw "that their control not only in Hungary but throughout the whole Soviet domain was at stake."

Dulles said Nikita Khrushchev took "a great gamble" when he relaxed Stalinization in Russia.

"A little relaxation of freedom in the Soviet Union, where after all Russians were ruling Russians, was a very different thing from using the same tactics in eastern Europe," Dulles said. There Russians were ruling peoples who were once free and came to be dominated and controlled by a hated foreign power."

In a speech to the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities, Dulles said youths in Poland, Hungary and elsewhere "are disproving the Kremlin's confident expectation that tyranny becomes a disease."

"We now find and can take infinite encouragement from the fact that this theory is false. Over recent years it has been the youth who have defected from tyranny to freedom."
